Sixcu our last issue, the arrivals at this port embrace four whaleships, bringing into port about 2000 barrels of oil. At Hilo two whalers are also reported below. At Kawaihae, the Cornelius Howland, Homan, has arrived, 44 months out from

New Bedford, with 120 barrels sperm. The total amount of oil arrived at these Islands this spring is about 7,500 barreis, of which 1600 barrels are at windward ports. Most of this would be shipped home, were a vessel here ready to take it. As it is, the bulk of it will be landed and stored to await the first ship that may arrive. | Probably three or four thousand barrels will yet be brought in, which, owing to the risk of taking it North and the scarcity of oil in Eastern markets should be sent home. The supply of cil in home ports is decreasing rapidly, which promises to enhance the price consideral'y before the close of the year. Money is being advanced to whaleships at 60 per cent. discount on their drafts, payable in greenbacks. This is about the rate of the premium on gold at the latest advices, Feb. 19. 62 was the latest quotation, with a prospect of further advance. An auction sale of 1000 gallons of Farrar's refined kerosene oil ex Arctic took place on the 21st, at 92 cents.

500 gallons polar oil sold at 62} @ 67 cts., per gallon. Up to this writing, we are without an arrival from San Francisco, our last packet having been the Comet three weeks since, with dates to Feb. 20. The bark Onward is hourly looked for.

The A. A. Eldridge sailed Wednesday, taking the mail and a full cargo of domestic freight. The Comet also sailed yesterday taking a very heavy cargo, and a crowded passenger list.

LONDON OIL MARKET.

The following is from the circular of Messrs. Maclean, Maris & Co., dated London, Jan. 1st. SPERM.—The total imports into London during the past year, it will be seen below, show a considerable falling off as com-ared with 1862, and with the exception of about 200 tons the whole of the arrivals from America have been on account of our two leading refiners. Of the oil received from the colonies nearly 800 tons were from American whalers, and shipped on Comparative prices,.....£76@77 85@86 97@98 100@102 The imports into Liverpool were 450 tons and into Glasgow 195 tons, making the total receipts for the United Kingdom 3805 tons against 4472 tons in 1862.

As was to be expected, the high price of cotton throughout the year has led to diminished consumption and dull markets. Prices opened in January at £55 to £85 10s, and have since steadily declined, with the exception of a temporary check in the early part of June, until they touched £76 in November, at which 300 tons of American oil sent home from the colonies were disposed of. A few small lots have since changed hands at £77, but at this rate there are more sellers than buyers, and the market closes very dull with a stock considerably in excess of our present requirements.

SOUTHERN OIL.—During the first four months prime quality remained steady at £43 to £44. In May an advance of 30s remained steady at £43 to £44. In May an advance of 30s per ton was established, and in June a farther one of 20s, the price being thea £46 10s, In July, August and September it fell to £42, but the following menth the market was clear-d at £44, and the whole of the Stork being then in second hands £47 to £48 was firmly demanded and since submitted to by by needy buyers. Our Imports were short, being only 485 tons against 1200 tons in 1862, and 730 tons in 1861, and the entire against 1200 tons in 1862, and 730 tons in 1861, and the entire stock at the wharves is only 50 tons.

Branncert.—There has been no change in the value of English during the whole of the past year, and American has ruled steady in consequence at about its for good quality, the bulk of the business done in it being for export to the Continent. The imports were 3100 cases, and the stock on hand on 31st December was 134 tons in the public Warehouses.

Whalebone—Our imports furing the past year from all parts was 95 tons, which, with the stock on hand on the 1st January, gave a total supply of 135 tons to meet the requirements of the trade for swelve months. The market opened quietly at £550 for Davis' Strait 2. £540 for Polar, and £440 for Bouthern, and gradually declined until April when the quotations were £490, £460, and £440 respectively. In May there was no alteration, but in June trices recovered to £540, £520, and £420 under the effect of a brisk demand for export. In August the market was cleared of Davis' Straits Bone by our Cutters at £550, and Polar advanced to £540 in consequence. Southern below—watery tenng decidedly unfavorable, Davis' Straits advanced to £560 at which it remains, Polar being quoted £530 to £540, and Southern £480 to £490. The stock at the public warehouses on the 31st December was 25 tons exclusive of Finners.

DIED.

WEBSTER-In Honolulu, March 23, of aneurism of the aorta, William Webster, a native of Balfore, Forfarshire, Scotland, aged 37 years 6 months

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser.

SATURDAY, MARCH 26. Our community was shocked by the announcement on Wednesday noon of the sudden death of Mr. WILLIAM WEBSTER, who was found dead in his office about one o'clock P. M. by Mr. Welsh the Queen's coachman, who went to deliver to Mr. W. a message from Her Majesty. the wall, where he appears to have fallen, and his mouth clotted with blood. From a postmortem examination, it was ascertained that the cause of his death was a rupture or aneurism of the aorta. For several days previous, it is said, he had complained of severe pain in the chest, which appears to have excited some apprehensions of death, as he made his will a short time before. He had been enjoying usual health, and on the day of his death, attended to his business as usual, and was also at the planter's meeting, where he signed his name as a member, which was probably his last official

Mr. Webster was a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, and came to these islands in 1850, where his qualifications as a civil engineer and surveyor attracted attention and soon brought him into active business. In 1853, at the suggestion of Mr. Wyllie, he was appointed land agent of Kamehameha 3, and on the accession of Kamehameha 4, also became agent of the crown lands. which he held till his death.

In 1855 or 6 he was chosen a representative from this city, and continued to hold his seat in the Legislature, having been re-chosen three or four times consecutively. He was speaker of the last House, and his well-known business qualities added to a fluent command of the vernacular, made him a useful and popular public officer. Indeed there are few men among us who have acquired so thorough and practical knowledge of the Hawaiians, knew so well their wants, and who sympathized more earnestly with them than WILLIAM WEBSTER. For these reasons he was considered as admirably fitted for the position of Minister, and his appointment as such would have been hailed with satisfaction by all classes and nationalities; but for reasons which need not be stated here, his claims were

As a member of the Legislature, although invariably elected as a government candidate. his course was independent and impartial, and on many questions he stood up openly and firmly for popular rights. As a representative he won many friends, among all classes of foreigners and Hawailans. And in his death the native population sas lost one of its best friends. Almost any one connected with the government could be spared at this time better than he. It was but three or four weeks ago that we announced Mr. Webster's marriage, and his sudden death casts a tragic gloom over the scenes lately clothed in fistivity, and leaves his widow to mourn his untimely end under such peculiar circumstances, that the sympathies and prayers of many will follow her in her deep affliction. The funeral was attended Thursday at 4 P. M. from the residence of Dr. R. W. Wood. The remains of the deseased were escorted by the Fire Department, of which he was a member. by the Masonic fraternity and a large number of citizens. The procession, which was an unusually long one, proved thence to the Reformed Catholic Church, where the burial service was performed by Bishop Staley, after which the body was taken to and deposited in Nuuanu Valley Cemetery. The Queen's carriage, with Col. Kapaakea, was also in attendance, representing the Royal family. There is a mysteriousness in this awfully sudden death which cannot but attract public attenion. It is hardly four months since we had to announce the death of our Sovereign, quite as unlooked-for. And now his Secretary and business agent is called as suddenly to meet his royal master in the world of spirits. There is something in these mysterious deaths of more than usual import, as if the Almighty Ruler was trying to attract the nation's attention, and to teach it that His ways are not as our ways, and that man must heed his Maker, and serve him only. The lessons sent are for the benefit of the living, to teach us that we are accountable beings, all servants and instruments of one Great master, by whom we are entrusted with the talents we have. A King who sits in his palace and says I will build and I will tear down, regardless of right, religion and reason; a minister or public officer who sneers at the religion which God in his wisdom provides for the people; or the humble citizen who scorns the restraints of law, justice and morality-all alike have to be taught by one Maker. We are all alike creatures in his sight-mere pigmies running about on the world's stage-one after another dropping off into the wide eternity. It matters little what may be our plans, whether as a people or as individuals, the Almighty has his, and he will execute them, let the consequences be what they may. Man's only true course is to move straight on, with but one prime object steadily in view-the greatest good of his fellow-men and the glory of his Sovereign Ruler. But a few short years at the most-a mere drop in the eternity of space-we can move about as actors on the checker-board of time, and then must pass by. To attempt to drown the teachings of providence in the festivities of the dance or in scenes of gayety, will only bring more sudden and more terrible national calamities. As a nation, we should heed these monitions, and let our public acts and our national character be such as religion, law, morality and justice can endorse.

(Correspondence of the Pacific Com'l Advertiser.) The Titles of Bishops, &c.

Sir :- In your issue of the 19th inst. is a letter signed "Kuaaina," in reference to the titles of Bishops, and professing to seek information on the subject. Your correspondent apparently is not very well acquainted with the position of Bishops in England-He says: " English Bishops are really Lords, having equal seats with other Peers in the House of Lords, but as mere Bishops have no claim to the title." This is incorrect. All Bishops are addressed in England as Lords, some by their right as Peers, others by courtesy. All the English Bishops are not Peers. The Archbishops of Canterbury and York are always Peers, and so are the Bishops of London, Durham and Winchester. The rest (except Sodor and Man) take their seats in the House of Lords by Seniority, and every junior Bishop (except he should happen to be of London, Durham or Winchester) remains without a seat in the Lords until a vacancy is created. But every English Bishop, whether a Peer or not, is addressed as "my Lord," and is entitled to it by courtesy as much as the eldest son of every Peer above the rank of Viscount, and the younger sons of all Peers above the rank of Earl. Every Colonial Bishop is entitled by courtesy to be addressed as "my Lord," and so are the Missionary Bishops, of whom Dr. Staley is one. Such is the title by which ne would be addressed in England. Of the status 26 the Bamar Coa thair every French Bishop, although in France there is no state church, is addressed as "Monsigneur," (my Lord.) The legal decision to which your correspondent refers, is no doubt in one sense correct. All Bishops are not legal Lords, (i. e. Peers-members of the House of Lords.) But there are many titular Lords, not Peers, whose courtesy titles are recognized in English law. In legal documents in which the name of a Commoner having a courtesy title occurs, the wording is thus :- " John Smith, Esq., better known as the Earl of Smithtown:"-" John Jones, Esq., better known as Lord John Jones;" or thus:-" The honorable John Smith, better known as," &c "The honorable John Jones, better known," &c. The former is, according to Blackstone, the more correct. (You will observe how the law recognizes the courtesy title.) All English Judges of the Superior Courts are add ressedas "my Lord," yet very few, if any, of them are Peers. The present Chief Justice of England (Queen's Bench,) who is a Baronet by descent, and of course a knight by creation, (for they are all knighted,) is addressed as "my Lord;" yet he is not a Peer. There are many anomalies in British titles -Lord Palmerston, for instance, is a Commoner in England and a Peer in Ireland, and reams of paper might be filled on the subject, which would perhaps but little interest the general reader. Let me sum up what I have said thus : that courtesy titles are recognized by law; that the Anglican Bishop here, if he went home to England, would be addressed as "my Lord," and is as much entitled thereto as any Bishop of an English Diocese who has not a seat in the House of Lords, of whom there are always at least two. I do not wish to fill your columns with a long argument on the value of honorary distinctions. Great writers on the subject have always held that in a free monarchy, rank and title are advantageous. Would your correspondent deny the title of " Esquire" to all who are not " Esquires by right" in the same way that he would deny the title of "Lord" to all who are not Peers? Would he I fear I have already trespassed at too great length confine the title " Reverend" to its narrowest limits? upon your columns, but your correspondent professes to seek information on the subject, and if I have afforded him or the community any, my object will have been answered.

ABOUT SEMMES AND THE ALABAMA .- Some of the whaleships now arriving from New Bedland have on board officers and seamen who have been captured by Semmes, and their vessels being burned, have been returned to New Bedford, where they have reshipped. A few days ago we met a Portuguese seaman, who had been taken from a whaler and with the rest of the crew kept on board the Alabama till an opportunity offered for sending them home. Among the crew of the whaler to which our informant belonged, were seventeen Portuguese, and Semmes tried hard to get them to ship on board the Alabama, as she was short-handed at the time, but every man stubbornly refused to serve. Semmes told them that they would find more and better whales with him than in New Bedford whaleships, with good pay and fare, and plenty of sport. When the captured crew was taken on board the Alabama, he says all were searched, and everything taken from them, even the gold and silver change that they had. From this Portuguese they took twenty dollars in gold, a knife and some other trinkets; from an officer of the vessel they took a gold watch and a large sum of money, all which they promised to return; but when leaving the pirate, they were forced to go without them, though they asked to have the things restored. The diabama is not an iron vessel nor iron-clad, but has wire rigging. Her best speed with steam and sails is 16 knots. She has six port guns and two long range swivel guns. Her superiority over most vessels consists in her speed. So far as her armament is concerned, any ordinary sloop of war is more than a match for her.
